Comments: Tower Gardens is a Garden city, one of the first of this unique type of dwelling in the country. It was planned to allow people to have their own green space and be closer to nature and wildlife while enjoying the pleasure of gardening and the outdoors. The gardens have a size that allow for wildlife to thrive in the city, as well as giving children room to enjoy outdoor activities in the safety of a private garden. At the same time the garden plants help stop climate change and flooding.

While extensions to the unique architecture that is Tower gardens cannot be prevented and in some cases where it brings the inside in closer connection with the outside can increase the joy and use of the gardens, extension which are untrue to the style and spirit of the garden city should be prevented at all costs.

As the gardens are where families spend most of their outdoor time on their property, the building up at the back of the properties with ugly large flat roofed extensions and privacy intruding dormers should be limited.

For those reasons we oppose the 6 metre extension to 19 Waltheof Gardens.
