Comments: In addition to my previous comment I have reviewed the planning permission that was granted for 7 Endymion Road and it states the below

'The amended site plan and proposal now includes the rear car park, which would revert back to garden area and will be associated with the lower ground floor flat. The boundary wall would also be extended and the crossover will be closed off.'

Building a 3 bedroom dwelling on the car park site is not mentioned anywhere in the previous planning application. The application was granted on the understanding that a garden would be in it's place.
