

This architectural elevation drawing shows a three-story brick building with a mansard roof. The roof is dark brown with a lighter brown ridge. The main facade is made of light brown bricks. It features four windows: two on the second floor and two on the third floor, all with arched tops and dark frames. A small, dark, rectangular feature, possibly a vent or a small window, is located on the first floor between the two second-floor windows. A large, dark-framed glass extension covers the ground floor. The building has two chimneys: one on the left side and one on the right side. A vertical dimension line on the right side indicates a height of 2.80m.
