SOUTH STAND PLANS

TOTTENHAM VS DORTMUND SIZE COMPARISON

7.5.3 SOUTH STAND

The South Stand is the 'Home End' and is designed from the set out of the mid tiers West and East. The design allows for a single tiered South Stand of approximately 17,000 spectators and will be the driving force behind the generation of stadium atmosphere. The design of the stand is generated from front wall of the mid tier, which becomes the super-riser wall within the south stand and the lower portion of the stand is designed from this super-riser down and the upper portion from the super-riser up. The super-riser will allow wheelchair spectators to be accommodated within the south stand while allowing the spectators behind the wheelchair users to have uninterrupted viewing and also allow for standing spectators to use the lower portion of the stand in the event of 'safe standing' to be included within the stadium in the future, again without disrupting the view of spectators seated behind.

To the west and east stands upper box tiers are inserted between the mid and upper tiers. These form the seating for the majority of box hospitality seating as well as a large Platinum Club, which is located on the centreline within the west stand box tier. The accommodation for these tiers is at level 04.

The upper tier to the north, east and west consists of primarily GA spectators with the tier rising to the maximum rake of 35 degrees as set out in BS EN 13200-2003 5.1.6.

Some hospitality seating is located within the west and east upper tiers on the centreline for users of the sky-lounges, maximising views from the hospitality accommodation with associated west-east stand seating as close as possible to the centreline.
