My main concern with the development regards the trees on the site. I note it is proposed to retain the weeping willow and I think this is very good news. I think this is a key issue and that everything should be done to ensure that the tree survives the process and to give it adequate room and care so that it can continue to thrive. It is a beautiful specimen.

I think it is a pity that the spruce tree at the south end of the site will be lost, as this tree has considerable character and amenity value, as well as wildlife value.

Kind regards,

Matthew Bradby
